ICE CARNIVAL IN PARK.

es, Enjoy Big Fete.

Park, Brooklyn. The lake was Brummated by Japanese tantisms and vari-colored electric lights, which gave its glassy surface a brilliant appearance. Many skaters were fancy costumes. Several races for men and women were held, prises being given to the winners. The fun lasted until 10 o'clock, when the lights were extinguished and the lake was closed for the night.

Multitude of New Fashions Makes It Hard to Select the Real From the Mere "Passing Fan-

To watch the new fashions and study them so that a wise compremise may be made between these that are substantial and those that are but "fleeting fancies," is not alto-gether easy. With skirts measuring anywhere from a yard and a half to three at the bottom and with waists extending anywhere from the bust line to the hip line, only the most opinionated can feel confidence in their own decisions in the matter. Of course becomingness is the biggest factor we all have to consider, and many of us are admittedly non-capable in this respect. Women of ma-ture figure are beginning to feel a bit peeved at Dame Fashion for her favoritism toward the figure of syiphike proportions, for it seems that she is able to wear all styles with equal becomingness. However, in reality there is a sort of a half-way concession in the modes of the moment, for is not the empire waist and flaring coat a decided compliment to the stout figure? And better yet, they can be reckened on with confidence as to their substantial role in spring's fashion play. fashion play.

Other details which can be safely considered are long, tight sleeves and snug high collar for suits and dresses alike. One limitation is that the colalike. One limitation is that the collar must be of opaque material, even though the blouse be of filmy transparency. However, this contrast of fabric is not often used, for the bodices of dresses as well as separate blouses are being made of opaque material either to match the skiri or to contrast with it. Very pretty is the

The charming afternoon frock I have designed for to-day is a tangible exposition of this theme, suggesting the dependable qualities of the mode. A rich dark brown velvet wound be sand serve a distinctive trimming. Nothing other than a plain full skirt is necessary for the completion of the frock. Almost any medium color woolen material could be used for it with a black velvet bodice.

In brick red taffeta the development of the design as suggested in the figure on the left would make a delightful afternoon gown for bridge and other affairs, to be worn under a fur coat. Here, more prominence is accorded the little over-bodice by a trimming of dual silver cording in a loop design, which may continue up the front edges, or be interrupted by round silver buttons and corded eyelets. A splash of sheer white mousseline gives a dainty finish to the neck. Repeating the loop design on the skirt, the cording serves as a preity trimming at the top of the hem. If a more practical frock be desired, this trimming may be of the taffeta or of self color slik braid.

Builders Meet Need of Economy by Reduction in Cost of Average Apartment.

More than 4,000,000 New "orkers

Flatbuilders in the Greater City have started homes for 75,837 persons during the past year at an estimated cost of $46,720,600. In 1913 their work housed 98,133, at $70,008,900. With the value of land, the total investment of 1914 has been $60,000,-000 in comparison with a round $100,-000,000 for the preceding year.

Flathouses in the five boroughs have been increased to 102,700. The average population is nearly 40 persons to a house. Manhattan has 40, 960 houses, the Bronx, 9,670; Brooklyn 46,500; Queens, 5,150; Richmond, 440. Nearly a third of the houses, or 24,250, have been built during the past twelve years under the new-law tenement act.

Statistics completed at the close of the year by Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy reveal a steady expansion of construction in Brooklyn and Queens, where new rapid transit projects, especially the dual subway system, are opening wide sections for the masses of flatdwellers. In all suburban boroughs the size of the average house is increasing, while in Manhattan the cost is maintained so high that the new homes cannot become available for any except families of large incomes. As many old structures are being demolished each year, it is apparent that the poorer families are being forced out of Manhattan to the cheaper homes of the suburbs. BUILDERS REDUCE AVERAGE

For afternoon wear the marquisette could form long sleeves in a bodice of the satin as such one-piece tunics are not in fashlon. Below the bodice, which, without a belt, should reach to just past the normal waist-line, a seven-inch band of the marquisette could be gathered to form the upper part of a straight satin skirt two and one-half yards around. Tight cuffs of gold lace could finish the sleeves and a colliar of it at the neck, while round gold cloth buttons trim the frent of the waist and, skipping the striped material on the skirt, continue about seven inches down the setin part.

Queens houses have increased in average cost to $14,030 from $3,000 in 1913, while the average apartment has risen from $1,354 last year to $1,505. The number of families in each structure has increased from $ last year to 9 during 1914. The expansion of Queens operations is shown likewise in the volume totals, the past year scoring 274 new structures with 2,564 apartments at a cost of $3,344,250, while 1913 recorded 314 new houses with 2,070 apartments at a cost of $3,344,250, while 1913 recorded 314 new houses with 2,070 apartments at a cost of $2,544,500.
